

510006

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL HISTORY OF EUROPE

Teacher responsible: A. Moysidis

compulsory (C) or selection (S) course	year	winter (W) or spring (S) semester
C	1st	W

This course examines the most important stages of the historical route to the formation of modern Europe, and analyses the processes of transition from the pro-capitalist forms of social and economic organization to capitalism. Among other issues, the course analyses issues related to the birth and morphology of Feudalism, the process of transition to Mercantilism, the birth of the bourgeoisie, the creation of the nation states, industrial revolution, colonialism and national oppositions until the Second World War.

- Reading list:
- Tuma, E., 1996. European Economic History. Athens: Gutenberg (translated into Greek).
 - Clough, S. & Rapp, R., 1980. European Economic History. Athens: Papazisis (translated into Greek).